If the early techno and generic rave sound coming from Holland in the 90s had died and got by mistake in dubstep heaven, this would be its reincarnation today on Belgian territory.

This four headed monster comes from Belgium and contains besides the original 3 remixes from the other Stainage members to add up some variation for good measure.

The original version sets the tone. Alchemyst melts in his pot of sound rave stabs and vox, layers them over a simple yet crushing beat and adds enough low end pressure to make you shake and sweat in fear. It's all about the bass and the build-up in this tune and Alchemyst's unmistakable signature sound.

BunZero's remix opts for a more twisted approach in the beat structure and plays with a mid-range bassline that will get stuck in your head. Grimelock rearrange the tune and make the intro even more epic adding more tension and a deadly sub. The bassline surgery is closed by Saviour whose version shifts from a trancey intro to break down towards a tearout bassline driven dubstep banger that will undoubtedly rock any party.
